OPEN FINANCIAL STATEMENTS: WHAT PREVENTS GOVERNMENT AGENCIES FROM PUBLISHING COMPLETE DATA SETS?

Corporate financial statements are among the most popular data sets among businesses, government agencies, and the public. Financial reporting analysis helps create a transparent business environment, and prevent economic and corruption risks. In 2021, the State Tax Service published a data set containing balance sheets and income statements of more than 430 thousand legal entities. However, this data set was incomplete, as it lacks some fields (chief accountant's name, average number of employees), as well as data for the years up to 2020. Moreover, data of legal entities registered under the simplified taxation, accounting, and reporting system, the holder of which is the State Statistics Service, were not published. So what prevents making financial statements publicly available in full? Experts and government officials discussed pressing issues during a round table discussion entitled “Why are financial statements still not publicly available?” Read more in our press release.

BRDO RESEARCH: HOW TO START UKRZALIZNYTSIA'S UNBUNDLING

The railway is one of the most popular methods of cargo transportation. The share of cargo turnover by rail is 75%. But in recent years, rail transport has lost its capacity and rapidly declined. While being a dominant player in the market for the provision of wagons for use within Ukraine and a supervisory entity that monitors the compliance with requirements of regulatory acts to guarantee traffic safety in railway transport, their classification, accounting, and analysis, the JSC “Ukrzaliznytsia” acts as a monopolist in the market of cargo transportation by rail. That is, in practice, the JSC “Ukrzaliznytsia” provides services in the market and has the powers of a technical policy regulator, i.e. it controls itself. Accordingly, there is no competition and impartial control in the market, and things will never be better without systemic changes. BRDO experts analyzed the freight wagon market, identified its key problems, and outlined possible solutions. The results of the study are available in the Green Paper “Unbundling of the JSC “Ukrzaliznytsia”: liberalization of the freight wagon market”. Read more about this research in our press release.

PROGRESS IN THE ASSOCIATION OF RAIL TRANSPORT WITH THE EU IS STILL INSUFFICIENT

According to the Association Agreement with the EU, full measures to reform railway transport should be completed in October 2022. However, as of the end of 2021, no steps have been taken. BRDO experts Andrii Bukovskyi and Zoya Melnyk shared their findings from the market research “The provision of wagons for use within Ukraine”.
